Part II Guide of Yangzhou

Located in the middle of Jiangsu province, the north shore of the lower reaches of the Yangtze River and the south end of the Yangtze-Huai Rivers plain, Yangzhou is the most vibrant and an important city in the economic circle of the Yangtze River delta. It boasts land coverage of 6,638 square kilometers and a population of 4.6 million, including the downtown area of 1,100 square kilometers with a population of 1.31 million.

Yangzhou is a cultural city with a long history and thriving culture. It is one of the first 24 historic and cultural cities released by the State Council with a founding history over 2,500 years. There were three golden times in the history of Yangzhou. Many famous men of letters left many poems chanting the beauty of Yangzhou." Such famous well-known sayings as “In this flowery March journeyed south to Yangzhou”, “The green city is Yangzhou”, “The gentle spring breeze swept down a ten-mile-long road of Yangzhou”, give true and vivid expression to Yangzhou featuring gorgeous image, beautiful ecology, serene environment, delicacy and elegance. In 2006, it was awarded the United Nations Habitat

Award, the highest prize in the area of global habitat.

Yangzhou abounds in natural resources, cultural resources and intangible cultural heritages and is one of the first excellent tourism cities in China. There are numerous historic sites and cultural relics, including 500 plus historic architectural complexes, 500 plus traditional lanes, 168 historic sites of various levels. Slender West Lake and Yangzhou historic quarter have been listed in the Preparatory Directory for World Cultural Heritages of China.

Yangzhou is an enlightened, open and economically prosperous industrial and commercial city. In history, Master Jianzhen went eastward to Japan to spread China's culture including Buddhism, medical sciences, architecture and art. The Korean Choe Chi-won, the Arabian Pu Hading and the Italian Marco Polo all left their footprints here. Now Yangzhou has established sister relations or carried out friendly exchanges with over 30 cities across the world and maintained economic and trade and cultural interactions with over 160 countries and regions in the world. In recent years, its economic strength was notably improved on the way toward economic transformation.
